

Community Awareness Information

You may have seen on social media platforms, posts referring to an online trend sometimes described as “School Wars”, in which social media posts encourage confrontation between students from different schools.

Although we do not want to draw unnecessary attention to this, it is important that we keep families fully informed about any safeguarding-related issues that gain momentum online, to ensure you have accurate information and clear advice. We kindly ask for your support by helping your child to stay clear of any online activity of this kind.

We are working closely with our partners, who are aware of this situation and are monitoring it carefully. Additional police presence may be put in place where intel suggests it might be necessary. Understandably, this may cause concern for some students and families, and we want to reassure you that the matter is being taken seriously.

If you or your child becomes aware of any information that may assist the police, please report it by calling 101 or submitting information online. In the event of an emergency, always call 999.

Key points to share with your child:

- Do not forward or share any of the circulating messages; doing so may be considered incitement.
- Do not participate in any activities linked to these posts.

Thank you in advance for your understanding and support in helping us keep our school community safe.

Kind regards

Mr Jonathan Hall
